

Northern Virginia Cleaning Services Company Is Helping Businesses And Offices Stop The Spread Of Monkeypox

July 06, 2022

July 06, 2022 -
Northern Virginia Cleaning Company, a commercial cleaning company from Vienna, Virginia, is advising the region?s residents to exercise caution following the increased frequency with which cases of monkeypox are being found in the area.

The first monkeypox case in Virginia was confirmed on May 26, 2022, when a Northern Virginia woman tested positive for the virus. On June 25, 2022, the Virginia Department of Health announced that they had found the state?s second presumed monkeypox case. Then, on June 30, 2022, the Virginia Department of Health released a statement saying that there were five additional presumed cases of monkeypox in Virginia, bringing the total number of cases to 8. Nationwide, as of July 1, 2022, according to the CDC website, there were 460 confirmed monkeypox/orthopoxvirus cases.

Monkeypox is a rare disease that was first discovered in 1959 and the first human case was recorded in 1970. It is only commonly reported in people from central and western African countries and all cases from outside the continent are attributed to international travel to those countries or the import of animals from Africa. Some common symptoms include fever, headache, muscle aches, backache, swollen lymph nodes, chills, exhaustion, and a rash that can look like pimples or blisters that appear on the face, inside the mouth, and on other parts of the body.

Northern Virginia Cleaning Company is advising businesses and commercial property owners on the precautions that they need to take to ensure that their site does not become a hotbed for the spread of the virus. A spokesperson for the Northern Virginia cleaning service provider says, ?Though monkeypox is not airborne, one of the ways that it can spread is by touching items such as linens that previously touched the infectious rash or body fluids. When you have thousands of people moving in and out of your facilities, you need to make sure that every surface they touch is sanitized to perfection. You just cannot afford a bad reputation for hygiene and cleanliness in a post-COVID world where everyone is on high alert for possible sources of contamination. Though monkeypox is not yet widespread, the CDC has already raised the alarm regarding the virus and the number of cases is poised to increase in the coming weeks. If you own or oversee the administration of a commercial property, you must cover your bases and hire the best people in the business to ensure that your site is safe for everyone.
