November 13, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Online Medical Assistant Programs is a new website based in Seattle, WA, that offers information to those looking to become a medical assistant. The website provides state by state information for free to assist those who may be in the beginning process of finding a school.

Tylor Bennett, founder of the site, states, "Finding quality information on how to become a medical assistant can be very difficult. Our aim is to make it easier to find this information all in one place, no matter where you may be from."

The site offers information by state regarding schools that offer medical assistant training programs, as well as salary information and general information about the field. Bennett says that the reason behind the website launch is to help students to more easily find the information they need to make a decision on whether or not this is the right career path for them. Those who need more information can also take a look at their Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/Online-Medical-Assistant-Programs-1680633312171525/>.

"It's all here," states Bennett. "We've done the research to ensure that we have answers to every possible question someone may have about this medical career."

The Bureau of Labor and Statistics shows the medical assistant category as one of the fastest growing careers in the nation, and they expect an increase in the need for medical assistance by as much as 30 percent in the next three years. The new site offers this information, in addition to a number of online medical assistant programs that can help students to prepare for schooling, find an appropriate school, and learn more about the field in general.

Bennett states that in the past, students would have to research for themselves to find schools that offer these programs online. He says this is the reason for the newly launched website - to provide information about where degrees can be sought by those interested in becoming a certified medical assistant. The new site offers information on a number of online learning programs, all dedicated to educating those interested in medical assistance degrees.

Those interested in learning more can visit the company on their official website. Bennett also encourages students to join the site on Google+ at <https://plus.google.com/b/107016825353154189797/107016825353154189797/>.
