November 16, 2015

November 16, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Palmate Gardening, an Ontario based company, has just launched a review on the Zmodo camera surveillance system. The report is available online and offers those interested in learning more about the system, an inside look at how it works and why it could be beneficial to home and business owners. They explain: "Security cameras are no longer just for the wealthy. Many people are installing security cameras in and around their home so they can keep an eye on it while they're away, see who's coming when they're home and ensure their family is as secure as possible. When purchasing a security system, a person needs to be sure they're purchasing the best they can afford. There are inexpensive setups available, especially if the person only needs a few cameras, but quality is still going to be important."

The company's report on the system stated that it is being offered in a number of packages with various price points available. This allows individuals from many different financial backgrounds to afford and use the security cameras. They are able to be used inside or out, and have weatherproofing and night vision capabilities for use after dark and in the elements.

The overall review by Palmate Gardening reflected the zmodo camera system in a positive light, focusing in on the wireless capabilities, the software provided by the company which allows users to view their footage on 8 screens at once, and the ease of use. They explain: "Users have overall enjoyed the cameras and love the quality. They do find the cameras easy to setup and easy to use locally or wirelessly. They also enjoy the night vision and many people have used the cameras to see what critters are hanging out around the house at night."

The Zmodo surveillance packages are now available online through the company's internet retail channel at Amazon.com. Home and business owners who are interested in knowing more about the system or how to obtain one are invited to visit the site and see for themselves what all of the good reviews are talking about. Palmate Gardening also encourages consumers to continue checking out their reviews of past, present and upcoming products.
