

Local Plumber in London, ON Discusses How the ?Forever Home? Trend Affects the Plumbing Industry

June 30, 2022

June 30, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

London, ON ? The month of June marks the halfway point of the year, so researchers, industry leaders, business owners and interested individuals are now getting an idea of which 2022 trend predictions are coming to fruition. One of the proven 2022 trends that has had a significant effect on the plumbing industry is the ?forever home? trend; a local plumber in London, ON is explaining why.

Right now, many homeowners are making plans to turn their current homes into ?forever homes.? One theory for this trend is that people spent so much time in their homes during the pandemic, causing those four walls to become their stable space in an ever-changing world. That, combined with the increasing number of individuals working remotely these days, may be the reason why so many people want to invest in making their current home their forever home.

A large part of creating a forever home is renovation. Especially after being at home so often during the pandemic, homeowners have learned what they do and do not like about their homes, as well as what they wish their home had, so right now, many homeowners are investing in renovating their homes. This is having an impact on the plumbing industry, as it has increased the demand for kitchen and bathroom renovations, the parts of the home that contain the most plumbing.

When it comes to remodeling a room that involves plumbing, it is wise to utilize the skills of an experienced plumber to ensure that the room is properly renovated. Otherwise, the homeowner may face major problems down the road that could have been easily avoided. Thus, the "forever home" trend has provided plumbers with an increase in renovation work!

Since day one, Triton Plumbing + Services has set out to show their community that they do not have to settle for the stereotypical gruff, untidy, impolite, and unprofessional plumber.
