Akron, Oh Roofing Company Shares Roof Maintenance Tips for Summer Storm Season

July 05, 2022

Akron, Ohio - July 05, 2022 -
In its latest blog post, TK Roofing And Gutters has developed a list of roof care tips for the summer storm season. Daryl Gentry, the owner, mentions severe summer storms as one of the biggest enemies of a roof, adding that strong winds, heavy rains, and hail can spell disaster for the roof.

The blog post explains how the unrelenting sun can degrade shingles and paint on the eaves or soffits, advising homeowners to maintain the roof's integrity to protect it against the vagaries of the weather.

The article discusses ways to maintain the roof and avoid costly repairs. The most important way to keep a roof?s integrity is to clean gutters, remove leaves and debris, and waterproof the house.

Debris in gutters can cause extensive water damage. The #1 roofer in Akron asserts the need for checking the roof for cracks that could be an open invitation to water to enter the house after a severe weather event. The blog post harps on the importance of roofing inspection and sealing all vents before the storm season.

Another important way to prevent roof damage is to check large trees in the vicinity of the property and trim overhanging branches. The top Akron roofer for storm damage finds that anything that hangs over the roof poses a significant threat and leaves the roof vulnerable to substantial damage.

?Weak or diseased trees can break or become uprooted in heavy winds, so you need to inspect trees near your house to ensure they're healthy. Look for signs that your trees are under stress. Deformed or dropped leaves, missing bark, dead limbs, and withered branches are all indications your tree is suffering,? warns Daryl Gentry.

A professional has the experience and resources to identify indications that the tree might not withstand heavy winds or storms.

A roof inspection is crucial to spot any damages from the storm. Akron's experienced local roofing company knows what to do after a storm.
