Beverly Hills, California - August 01, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Jochen Chiropractic & Wellness Center, a holistic and pain-free clinic based in Beverly Hills, CA, has explained their diversified approach to health and healing in a new blog post. The Beverly Hills chiropractor clinic applies a three-tiered approach towards healing. This is made up of pain-free treatment alternatives; spinal mobilization correction and recovery; and a prevention and wellness program. With decades of experience, the team at Jochen Chiropractic and Wellness Center in Beverly Hills can help patients in enhancing their overall health and wellness.

Dr. Stephen Jochen, D.C. says, "The team at Jochen Chiropractic and Wellness Center believes in a diversified approach to health and healing. If you've been experiencing pain, we want to get to the root cause of the problem. It's why we've developed a three-tiered approach toward healing. And if you're suffering from a sports injury, lower back pain, neck pain, headaches or a chronic pain condition like fibromyalgia, a soft tissue massage may be just what you need. In addition to your main issue being treated, Dr. Jochen and his team will also look for the underlying cause of your symptoms during your session."

Dr. Jochen points out that their pain-free treatment alternatives are a combination of various kinds of treatments. These include: chiropractic manipulations to achieve optimal spinal alignment; physical therapy; and soft tissue massage therapy. For correction and recovery, they provide patients with the tools required to correct the root cause of the pain. They teach the patient a series of exercises, which include spinal mobilization correction. These exercises are taught in the Beverly Hills clinic and then the patients can practice them in their own homes. These unique exercises are designed to: provide the patient with better stabilization; strengthen the body; and stretch the muscles for reduce pain and enhance flexibility.

Jochen Chiropractic & Wellness Center also provides a maintenance program because daily activities tend to result into spinal misalignment. With this program, they will ensure that the spinal alignment will be achieved faster and minimize the chances of the person suffering from chronic pain conditions. This program is made up of regular chiropractic adjustments, including the exercises and treatments that are most suitable for each individual.

And when looking for a sports chiropractor Beverly Hills residents may also rely on Jochen Chiropractic & Wellness Center. They can provide chiropractic care for sports injuries, which are mostly soft tissue in nature. Also, many of these injuries are due to incorrect body biomechanics and sporting methods, which is why chiropractic doctors are preferred for sports injuries.
