Lodi, CA, has been long known for its diverse high-quality grape cultivation. Nearly a fifth of all grapes in California are grown in Lodi. Today, the region boasts over 100 different grape varieties some of which are cultivated in vineyards that are more than a century old. In recent decades, its Zinfandel has gained popularity nationwide. The region was even named the Wine Region of the Year in 2015 by Wine Enthusiast Magazine. The local legislative bodies have had a significant hand in this transformation of Lodi and its wines as an internationally recognizable brand.

In 1991, the Lodi Winegrape Commission, which was initially created to launch a pest management program, became California's original wine-grape sustainability program, LODI RULES. The LODI RULES Sustainable Winegrowing Program aims to boost viticulture research by taking inputs from farmers, scientists, and environmentalists. It also sets standards to ensure environmental, social, and economic sustainability for wine-growing communities. LODI RULES has been so successful that earlier this year, wine production company eSt Cru Wines' vintage 2020 Clothesline Roussanne received Double Gold 99 points at the 2022 California State Fair. The 2020 Clothesline Roussanne was crafted by eSt Cru Wines with sustainability in mind and is certified by LODI RULES.

In terms of the city's economic health, it currently employs around 28,900 people in industries such as health care, retail, construction, and others. The median household income in the city is $58,763. Compared to other parts of California, the city has a high ratio of employees (5.85 times higher than average) working in agriculture, farming, fishing, and forestry, as these are the core occupations responsible for propping up the city's reputation as one the premier wine destinations in the state.

A representative for Family Title Loans talks about the challenges facing Lodi residents by saying, "Car owners from all walks of life approach us because we provide the best car title loans Lodi, CA, residents can avail of. Over the years, we have talked to and served several Lodi residents who have faced unique challenges while trying to survive in the city's economy. The city has an unemployment rate of 9.0%. To add some perspective, the average unemployment rate in the country is 6.0%. Also, as one of California's most notable cities, the income inequality index is 0.499, according to the GINI calculation of wage distribution, which is higher than the national average of 0.478. So, though the city has seen growth over the last few decades and its wine industry has been making waves all over the country, the rising tide hasn't lifted all boats equally. Some have been left behind. It is these people that we meet regularly and hear from. We do our best to lend a helping hand.
