August 08, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Emergency financial services provider, Kentucky Title Loans, is drawing attention to the recent recognition that the Louisville MSA received from a major business publication. Louisville readers who are curious about the bespoke financial services that Kentucky Title Loans offers can find out more about the company by heading over to the link: <https://kentuckytitleloans.net/locations/louisville-ky-40258/>.

Full-service media brand specializing in the site selection marketplace, Business Facilities Magazine, has ranked the Louisville Metropolitan Statistical Area third on its list of Logistics Leaders, a ranking that measures all forms of transportation logistics including shipping by air, rail, water, and highway. This is the second year in a row that the Louisville MSA has ranked on the publication's Top 10 list.

A spokesperson for Greater Louisville Inc, an organization that works to promote the growth of business in the city and surrounding counties in Kentucky, reacted to the recognition by calling Greater Louisville "a natural hub for logistics". The city's reputation as a logistics stronghold is nothing new as Expansion Management magazine had also previously given the city a five-star logistics rating and ranked it as the second-best in the country for logistics.

Louisville's success as a logistics hub can be attributed to the efforts of Greater Louisville Inc, formerly the Louisville Area Chamber of Commerce, as well as the city's robust transportation infrastructure. For example, one of the initiatives of Greater Louisville Inc is the Advanced Manufacturing & Logistics Network (AML), a collaboration between logistics and manufacturing companies to share best practices and engage with resources to improve business performance and strengthen the community. It focuses on five key areas including networking and industry collaboration, advocacy, workforce and education, economic development, and structure.

Louisville, due to its central location is also home to UPS Worldport, the international shipping and supply chain management company's worldwide air hub. For businesses that rely on ground transport, the city is within a day's drive of over two-thirds of the country's population. The highway system in Greater Louisville provides one-day access to well over 66 percent of the major domestic markets via Interstates I-65, I-64, and I-71. When it comes to rail transport, Greater Louisville is served by three Class I railroads ? Canadian Pacific (CP), CSX, and Norfolk Southern (NS) ? and multiple regional and short-line railroads. For connectivity via waterways, the region has 48 private terminals and 3 public inland ports on the Ohio River - Jefferson Riverport International (Kentucky), Meade County Riverport (Kentucky), and Port of Indiana-Jeffersonville (Indiana).

When asked for its thoughts on the recognition that Louisville MSA received from Business Facilities Magazine, a spokesperson for Kentucky Title loans was on record saying, "We are glad to see the area growing as a national logistics hotspot." Even though Louisville's accomplishments in the logistics industry are worth talking about, there are plenty of Kentuckians who feel left out of the economic windfall that the rest of the state is benefiting from. Instead, their day-to-day attention is more likely to be occupied by the rising prices of gas and everyday goods which are straining their already tight budgets. If they are faced with sudden medical bills or other expenses that need to be dealt with fast, coming up with the required funds can seem nigh impossible.

Louisville residents caught in such a quandary can turn to the financial services offered by Kentucky Title Loans which promises disbursement of funds up to $50,000 in as little as 24 hours, straight to the applicant's bank account. The company even accepts applications from clients with a poor credit history. Kentucky Title Loans approves all kinds of vehicles including cars, trucks, motorcycles, RVs, and more, as long as they are not older than 1999 and are in excellent condition.
