It need not be tough to find an auto accident lawyer in Atlanta, but the firm does state that seeking legal assistance should be among an accident victim's first actions after the incident (after they receive medical attention). They should locate a legal office with knowledgeable auto accident attorneys who can be contacted at any hour of the day or night. This office should also be situated at an accessible location and have a demonstrable history of success on behalf of its clients. The team should essentially care more about a client's condition as an individual than a client who is simply padding their bottom line. Ideally, they should also have the capability of sending representatives to the client if the latter is unable to come to them for the initial consultation.

The law offices of Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., meet all of these criteria for Atlanta car accident lawyers. The firm has seven convenient offices in Georgia that all their clients are welcome to visit. Legal counsel is also accessible at all hours of the day and night through phone or the internet (as well as on weekends and public holidays). The firm has a proven track record of success handling auto accident cases and goes above and beyond for their clientele to make sure they are taken care of.

The firm strongly believes that the state of a client's health should never be viewed by a lawyer as merely another matter to be handled. In addition to obtaining the compensation the client needs and deserves, their health and wellbeing depend on their attorney's capacity to effectively and honestly represent them in court.

Understanding a client's injuries, how they have affected their quality of life and how they will continue to influence it is vital for an attorney. To comprehend the financial anxiety and frustration that clients are experiencing when dealing with insurance adjusters, an attorney must be empathetic. In order to establish a relationship with their clients, the lawyers at Kenneth S. Nugent, PC realize this and take the time necessary to speak with them. As a result, each of their attorneys are better able to comprehend the issue at hand and convey a client's argument in an assertive manner.

The majority of people decide to represent themselves in court because they believe it would be too expensive to hire an attorney following a car accident. However, given that auto accident lawsuits are frequently handled incorrectly, many wounded parties receive significantly less compensation than they were due. This is especially true when there are major injuries or questions regarding who is at fault. Georgia state law enables the person to hold the other driver financially liable if they were the cause of the client's auto accident. A person is in a much better position to receive the full compensation they require when they take the right actions in the first days and weeks following an accident: hiring a lawyer.

The attorneys at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. have knowledge in a wide range of legal issues in addition to their expertise in auto accident cases. They have experience managing a wide variety of cases, including car accidents, incidents involving public transportation, workers' compensation claims, claims involving faulty goods and dangerous property and claims involving the bad faith of insurance companies. The firm has a strong track record of success with matters involving medical negligence, nursing home abuse and wrongful death.

They advise consumers to get in touch with their team quickly following an occurrence so they can offer the best advice and make sure their clients obtain adequate compensation for their accident (and in other circumstances as well). The attorneys work hard to give each client the individualized care, focused attention and tenacious representation required to obtain the justice and peace of mind they desire.
