Hilton Head Island, SC - 101 Things To Do, a biannual publication, showcases a variety of activities every member of the family can try while on Hilton Head Island. The web and print editions of the complimentary tourist magazine include 101 activities to enjoy during a family trip to the historic island.

There is a Family Activities To Do Hilton Head for everyone. Hilton Head Island Sailing is available to a family member who likes to sail the island's seas. This offers two-hour dolphin watch nature trips, breathtaking sunset sails, and fireworks cruises throughout the summer. In the seas of Hilton Head, visitors may watch dolphins up close and explore the abundant fauna and scenery, which is perfect for both young and older family members.

Family visitors can also try the catamaran for professionally guided sightseeing. In addition, they can hire jet skis and have a bar on a pedal-powered cycle boat. It is a 36-foot, 20-passenger, custom-built pontoon boat with cycle seats around a bar. Customers pedal from these seats to propel the ship.

In addition to water-based activities, the 101 Things to Do Magazine offers a variety of land-based activities. Stoney-Baynard Ruins are a site to see in Hilton Head. The ruins recount the rich history of the Stoney and Baynard families of Hilton Head Island. They are also included on the National Register of Historic Places. Those interested in Hilton Head Island's past may also visit the Heritage Library, which is committed to studying and preserving national and ancestral history.

Those who want to see Hilton Head Island from a unique vantage point may climb the Lighthouse. This red-and-white-striped Lighthouse became a Hilton Head Island icon and worldwide emblem. The Lighthouse may be seen at the Harbour Town Yacht Basin. Visitors must ascend 114 stairs to reach the summit, which offers an extra thrill to the journey. The Lighthouse also contains a museum with a rare collection of images and artifacts from the nineteenth century and the American Civil War.

To get a comprehensive list of all the exciting family activities, visitors may visit their website at https://101thingshiltonhead.com. Anyone may request a copy of the magazine via their website. In addition to Hilton Head Island, 101 Things To Do also provides activity listings for Beaufort, Bluffton, Charleston, Daufuskie Island, South Carolina, and Savannah, Georgia. In addition to Hilton Head, they also print tourist magazines for the Outer Banks of North Carolina, California, Oregon, Hawaii, and Arizona.
