Revitalize You MD, a med spa in Roswell, GA, is pleased to announce that they are offering hormone replacement therapy (HRT) for weight loss. The treatment can result into weight loss because it will provide the individual with the proper amount of hormones to keep up the person?s metabolism and energy levels. This can help the patient get rid of some weight and also feel better.

Weight loss appears to be much harder as people get older. This is due to the hormone imbalance that people experience as they age. Hormones are important chemicals within the body that are made by the endocrine system?s glands. These hormones go to the different parts of the body to the proper organs, tissues, and systems to deliver messages telling them what to do and when.

Studies have shown that as people age, there are changes in hormones that happen naturally. For instance, an endocrine tissue may provide less of its hormone than it did at a younger age, or it may produce the same amount but at a slower rate. This results in a decline in DHEA, parathyroid hormone, progesterone, and calcitonin. Without the appropriate balance of hormones, the body then loses the capability to regulate the processes that result into weight loss. This causes slower metabolism, more abdominal fat, and less energy for a person to exercise adequately.

The hormones control various bodily functions, such as metabolism, growth, immune function, digestion, mood, sleep patterns, appetite, and libido. This means that if a person?s hormones are down, the patient can experience a lot of fatigue, even when they are already well-rested. An individual may also have problems with digestion, weight loss, and sleeping and anxiety, as these conditions are all interrelated. If one has a problem with the thyroid hormone, one?s skin and hair may experience changes like hair shedding or an acne breakout. And lastly, people can expect a much lower sex drive or discomfort during sex. HRT can be used to help alleviate most of these symptoms.

Fortunately, HRT using bioidentical hormones may offer a remedy for the hormonal imbalance that people experience as they age. In addition to proper exercise and a healthy diet, hormones that can help with weight loss include: testosterone, estrone, progesterone, DHEA, human growth hormone, insulin, incretin, and pregnenolone. It is important to note that medical experts recommend the use of bioidentical hormones instead of synthetic hormones. Bioidentical hormones are preferred because they have the same molecular structure and biological effect as the hormones created by the body. Studies have shown that bioidentical hormones may be safer to use and rarely cause unwanted side effects.

Meanwhile, previous clients of Revitalize You MD have been providing highly positive reviews. For instance, in a recent 5-star review from Kie T., she said, ?This is a great little health & wellness gem at the Roswell/ Alpharetta boarder! They do hormone replacement therapy for both men & women, medical weight loss, & IV vitamin therapy. Lovely office, great staff, & they even offer acoustic lipo!?
