Dentists are often uniquely positioned to provide pro bono dental implants to those who cannot afford them. A recent study found that providing pro bono dental services can have a significant impact on the oral health and quality of life in underserved populations. The study showed that people who received free dental care had increased economic opportunities and decrease in tooth decay, gum disease, and other oral health problems.

"It was an honor to provide Summerlin residents Brian, a 35-year-old man, and Justine, a 23-year-old young lady, with life-changing dental implant work," stated Dr. Marianne Cohan, a dentist at Summerlin Dental Solutions. "It's important to give back to the community. Providing pro bono dental implants is one way to can help those who are less fortunate. We are confident this will help boost their quality of life and increase future opportunities." Dr. Marianne Cohan is a dentist in Summerlin, NV at Summerlin Dental Solutions. Summerlin Dental Solutions has been providing a lot of pro bono work for patients in underserved areas that cannot afford dental work.

Dental implants in Summerlin are becoming more and more popular every day. In the U.S., dental implants are frequently performed to enhance the quality of life. This is due, in part, to the advances in technology that have made them a viable option for people who are missing one or more teeth. Dental implants not only look natural but also feel natural, which is why they are becoming the optimal choice for people looking for an affordable and long-lasting solution to their missing teeth problem.

Dental implants are a great solution to missing or damaged teeth. Unlike other solutions, such as dentures, dental implants offer a more natural look and feel due to their biocompatibility with the body. Dental implants are a standard procedure in which a titanium post is surgically implanted into the jawbone to serve as a foundation for an artificial tooth or teeth. Implants can be used to support a single tooth or multiple teeth. Implant surgery is typically not very invasive, making them a popular choice for those looking for an attractive and functional solution to their missing teeth.

Thanks to the wide range of services offered by Summerlin Dental Solutions, patients can find the perfect solution for all their dental needs. Whether they are looking for a new smile or need to have a tooth replaced, Summerlin Dental Solutions has got them covered.
