Revival Products Inc., a company based in Kernersville, NC, wants to inform everyone that their soy products don?t taste like soy while offering the benefits of soy in a person?s daily diet, which include relief from the discomforts of menopause and it may even help with weight loss. Many people don?t want to include soy in their daily diet because soy products typically have a bland, chalky flavor. Fortunately, Dr. Aaron Tabor, the developer of the Revival soy products for menopause relief, had strived to perfect the taste, texture and consistency for the soy products and they have been found to be delicious by many people who have tried them.

The results from a peer-reviewed and published research at the Johns Hopkins Hospital have indicated that Revival Soy can naturally decrease the hot flashes experienced during menopause. The women who participated in the study noticed substantial decreases in night sweats and hot flashes, in contrast to their starting baseline levels. The usual reduction was found to be almost 40 percent in just 12 weeks in a study that was partly funded by Physicians Laboratories.

Suzanne Tabor, President of Revival Products Inc., says, ?Menopause is a natural stage of life all women experience as they age. The hot flashes, night sweats, mood swings and lack of energy can make menopause one of the most physically and emotionally miserable times in a woman?s life. While soy is not a replacement for prescription medication or HRT, over twenty clinical trials show that soy can help you have a more enjoyable and healthy mid-life by lessening hot flashes and other mild discomforts of menopause. Soy consumption has been shown to significantly improve a woman?s comfort and health during peri-menopause, menopause and post-menopause.?

Scientists became interested in the possible use of soy for relieving hot flashes and night sweats during menopause after demographic studies had shown that only about 9 percent of women living in Asia, where their diet is rich in soy, had hot flashes. This contrasted greatly with the almost 80 to 90 percent of Western women who experienced such menopausal discomforts.

In addition, it has also been observed that it is possible to use soy protein for weight loss. Revival Products has a unique 6x blend, which means their products have a concentrated soy blend that contains six times more soy isoflavones compared to other soy products that don?t use their patented process.

They want to stress that many of the available diets tend to restrict essential nutrients, which can result into a diet that is unbalanced and might not offer optimal nutrition, which can result into poor long-term health. In contrast, the weight loss soy diet offered by Revival Products allows the individual to obtain all the nutrition required for healthy and optimal dieting. They also recommend that proper nutrition be combined with exercise. In a clinical trial that they conducted, participants had an average weight loss of 26 pounds in 16 weeks, including a belly fat loss of approximately 25 percent. A bonus is that soy protein is also heart healthy. According to the FDA, ingesting 25 grams of soy protein daily, as part of a diet low in cholesterol and saturated fat, may decrease the risk of heart disease.

Founded as Revival Soy in 1998, Revival Products Inc. had the mission of creating a line of protein bars, snacks, and shakes that would have the positive health effects of soy while also offering a delicious way to diet. Dr. Aaron Tabor was able to get a patent for the process that he developed on how to extract the most beneficial part of soy and adding this to the various types of Revival Soy products. He has also initiated clinical trials to find scientific proof of the health benefits that can be obtained from the products. Currently, they have finished 20 such clinical trials and many are still ongoing.
