November 19, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Smart Street Media, an SEO company in Calabasas, California, is proud to announce that they have reached a number of important milestones for their clients. These include 5,000 first page Google rankings, 20,000 leads generated for their clients, and 1,000,000 app downloads. This has made them the most successful local search engine optimization (SEO) company in the Calabasas area.

"We are so happy to have reached all of these important milestones," says Victor Smushkevich from Smart Street Media. "However, we feel that the credit for this belongs to our clients. After all, they are the ones who asked us to do a job, and we simply went out to do it. So thank you to our customers."

The business is a full service digital marketing agency. They offer SEO, PPC management, social media management, user acquisition marketing, web design, and web development services. This makes them fully comprehensive and a one stop shop for all things linked to online businesses. Through their work, they aim to increase their clients' online presence and help them generate more new customers. In so doing, they help them increase their overall revenue.

The services that have been provided by the company have been very positively received by their many clients. Clients frequently mention the fact that the company is incredibly reliable and professional, always understanding what the issues are that need to be addressed. Many have also commented on the fact that they feel less like clients and more like partners. Victor, in particular, is respected for taking the time out to find new and out of the box solutions and for the personal attention he gives to each of his clients, regardless of how long the job is.

Smart Street Media, and particularly Victor, provide true SEO expert services. They offer a fantastic return on investment, which can be checked through their established partnerships. Furthermore, the business offers analytical engineering and ingenuity. This is seen throughout their work, including in their SEO, web design and optimization, and internet marketing. The company is looking forward to hitting their next major milestone.
