November 16, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Several Amazon customers have recently shared their success with Home and Garden America's survival seeds. The product reviews of these satisfied customers reveal their experiences with the seeds, which enabled them to grow their own vegetable gardens successfully.

"Excellent! Three months ago, I grew my tomato seeds in some twelve-inch pots. At first I wondered if I'll ever see them bear fruit, but now I have three healthy plants with six tomatoes! They're getting bigger and bigger every day and watching them grow is incredibly rewarding. I will definitely try growing other varieties soon," wrote Mypad from Long Beach, CA.

"If you want quality seeds pack that produces a healthy garden, this is it. The reason I chose Home and Garden America is because they sell non-GMO seeds for a great price. The varieties are amazing and my plants are thriving well! I'm very pleased with the product. Can't wait to harvest my French Breakfast radishes," said Lisa Marie from Boone, NC.

Jenna H. from Maryland wrote: "We started our very first garden with this survival seeds pack. All of the seeds we've sprouted have now grown into healthy plants. We will be moving them to our new garden beds during the next couple of days. Thank you for providing such an excellent product!?

A. Hernandez, another Amazon customer, remarked: ?I'm just absolutely pleased with these survival seeds. I have a lovely garden now.?

Reading all these progress reports has made Home and Garden America even more grateful for their valued customers. According to a representative, the company is humbled by the positive reception and feels proud to be part of the growing urban gardening movement.

?As a small family-owned seed company, it really is overwhelming to get all this support from our customers. It is also rewarding to see that more American households are now taking up gardening. We will always work hard to provide premium-quality seeds so that everyone will have the opportunity to grow their own healthy fruits and vegetables at home,? the company representative stated.

Home and Garden America?s website has more info about non-GMO survival seeds.
