A Perth, Western Australia based reputable digital marketing agency, Webitrix Media, has announced the launch of their newly revamped website. The company, which has mainly been providing Search Engine Optimisation and web design services to clients for several years, stated that they felt the time was right to redesign their site as a means of offering their clients a better online experience.

"We've revamped our site in order to focus on the local market in Perth and surrounding cities in Western Australia," says company founder and Managing Director, Mitch Kono.

By offering more localised services, the Webitrix SEO company in Perth is confident to be able to provide local businesses with more positive results, and the ability to tap into more local markets, since it is becoming the norm for people to search locally for products and services on their smartphones and laptops, which Kono says is critical, particularly for small to medium sized companies.

In addition to the new website, the company has also created Facebook, Google+ and YouTube accounts to assist their clients even further. In business since 2007, the company has a long line of testimonials from past clients.

"We launched two new websites and Webitrix Media quickly got us visible to Google in a short space of time," states Dr. David Topchian of The Doctors Studio in Melbourne. "Mitch has been very responsive to feedback and collaboration, and I found him knowledgeable on how the whole, complex Google ecosystem works."

The newly designed website features an SEO Discovery Form, which enables businesses to input their wants and needs regarding their own websites, and helps Webitrix to offer customized services to meet those requirements. Kono states that the idea for the website redesign came about when he noticed that although his business had been operating for years, the site just wasn't up to speed with regards to offering clients ease of finding information about the services that they need.

The site was re-launched recently and Kono says that it is up and running, offering better information and more of what their clients need to see when it comes to making the decision about what services are best for their business needs.

More about Webitrix can be seen on their official website or any of their newly created social media pages.
