They have been a premier provider of such services in Arizona since 2012 and they have always strived to offer the best possible customer service in restoring a home or business to their pre-disaster condition. This is a family-owned company that is focused on helping Phoenix residents and businesses recover from the damages caused by a disastrous event, such as a fire or flooding.

In their latest five star review, B. Arias said, ?I had Drystar come out because we had a leak in our bathroom. They came out within an hour or two of me calling him and gave me a few options I need of having them do the work and help dry everything out. Noah was able to help me get the insurance set up and took care of everything for me. They were usually able to work around my busy schedule and accommodated me when I needed it. I was very happy with the service they provided and the work they did. I use them to put it all back together as well. We had a few hangups due to the adjuster not being responsive but they were still able to work with me and after finally getting the approval from the insurance help me put my home back together. Thank you Noah Jonny and Alonso for helping me get everything dried out and thank you Martin Rafael and Neil for helping me put it all back together I appreciate you guys very much. If you?re unfortunate enough to need restoration services I would definitely recommend this company.?

The water damage restoration service is comprised of six simple steps. First of all, the customer will need to contact Dry Star Restoration. To ensure that the extent of the water damage is minimized as much as possible, they can be contacted at any time of day or night. Second, their water damage restoration experts will go to the property to inspect and evaluate all possible areas of damage. The third step is the water extraction process, where most of the water will be eliminated from the structures of the home to prevent further damage and minimize the time required to dry the area. Fourth, they will employ drying equipment to get rid of the water that has been retained in the building materials, thus reducing the risk of mold damage. The fifth step is the cleaning process, which will include the odor removal and deodorization treatment techniques. Their technicians will then clean the upholstery, floors, walls, furniture, clothing, and other personal items that can be recovered. And finally, they will do the restoration of the home or building back to its original condition before the disaster happened. This may include minor repairs, including the replacement of drywall and installation of new carpet. More serious damages may need a major reconstruction of some parts of the home or commercial building.
