McHenry Roofing repaired some flash on our roof after a recent wind storm. They did quality work at an affordable price and for that reason have earned my trust. They're a popular roofer in Locust Point and a number of my neighbors have used them in the past.

Baltimore Roofer Receives Glowing Review for a Recent Roof Repair in Locust Point

September 02, 2022

BALTIMORE, MD - September 02, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Locally owned and operated Baltimore area roofing company, McHenry Roofing, has a long history of satisfying home and business owners in its Maryland area with quality roofing services. This has helped to make them a popular roof repair choice in several communities throughout their area. One of those areas, Locust Point, is where the company recently performed an emergency roof repair that the customer was so happy with, that he felt compelled to leave a 5-star review. That customer who was looking for a roofer near me in Locust Point after that recent windstorm, Phillip Day, stated, "McHenry Roofing repaired some flash on our roof after a recent windstorm. They did quality work at an affordable price and for that reason, they have earned my trust. They're a popular roofer in Locust Point and several of my neighbors have used them in the past. If someone is looking for a roofer near Locust Point, they should reach out to McHenry Roofing." The company owner, Joseph Conley, who always takes the time to personally respond to the reviews on his company, replied, "Flat roof repairs are our specialty, and we love being a local roofing company in Locust Point. Phillip, it was a pleasure earning your roofing business and I look forward to your call when it is time to install a new torch down roof." As the owner's response says, flat roof repairs are one of the most in-demand jobs that McHenry Roofing does. He added that they offer several different types of flat roof coverings for both homes and commercial properties.

The company owner also stated, "We have worked hard to gain the trust of many people who have roofing needs in Baltimore and the surrounding communities. One of the areas that we have created one of our biggest followings in is Locus Point. A community that we are proud to serve because of the many good, hard-working people there. We will continue to provide the quality roofing services that it takes to further grow our reputation in that area." Conley went on to say that his crews like working in an area such as Locust Point which is steeped in tradition and history. It's a harborside area that's home to the famous Fort McHenry; a place that features daily flag-changing ceremonies and artillery demonstrations. There is also a museum dedicated to the history of the fort and how its role in the War of 1812 even helped inspire "The Star-Spangled Banner". Quaint seafood restaurants, taverns, and sports bars can also be found throughout the area. It's an area that also features such attractions as Latrobe Park, the Francis Scott Key Elementary School, and E For Ave. He says this also means there are many residential and commercial roofs in the area that will occasionally need repairs or maintenance and they are happy to help with that.

Conley says that doing flat roof repairs and installations are not their only roofing specialties. They are very good when it comes to doing sloped roof repairs too including whole roof replacements. He stated roof replacements are the best way to ensure that older and worn sloped roofs stay watertight and add to the looks of the home or business that they sit on top of. The company owner also mentioned some of the other reasons why home and business owners that have roofing needs in Locust Point and elsewhere in Baltimore look to them for help. This includes the fact they offer free consultations, next-day estimates, and they use their own experienced in-house roofing crews. Customers of McHenry Roofing can also expect nothing but top-quality roofing materials to be used and on-site project management to go along with the best warranties in the industry and prompt and reliable service. He added that those who need a roof repair in Locust Point or elsewhere in the Baltimore area can contact them by phone, email, or by using the form that's found on the company website.
