September 12, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mighty Dog Roofing, a company located in Lexington, KY, has pointed out on their Facebook page that property owners need to be on the lookout for moss and algae on their roofs because these can cause substantial roof discoloration and other damages. Because of the warm and humid conditions at this time of the year and the accumulation of pine needles and leaves on the roof, the roof is an ideal environment for algae growth. Property owners will need to check the roof for tree dropping and for dark discoloration, which is an indication of the presence of algae.

But for property owners who don't have the time or the aptitude to perform a roof inspection, it would be advisable to get professional help. Mighty Dog Roofing can provide free roof inspections that will definitely be more thorough as they will be checking on 25 factors, such as: inspection of valleys; nail head inspection; roof edging inspection; soffits and fascia inspection; drip edge inspection; storm damage wind inspection; eaves rakes inspection; roof sheathing or decking; hip and ridge inspection; roof ventilation and exhaust system inspection; chimney inspection; inspection of step counter flashing; furnace caps and pipes inspection; gutter aprons; plumbing stack inspection; gutters inspection; inspection of siding; foundation drainage inspection; downspouts inspection; inspection of skylights; A/C unit exterior; window inspection; storm damage hail inspection; ventilation inspection; and attic inspection.

Mighty Dog Roofing of Lexington will also be using unbiased drone inspections because they value trust and accuracy when providing a service for the home. Using smart intelligence analytics together with their drone technology will provide their home inspections team with valuable information to determine the baseline health of the roof of a particular property. They will store the information gathered in what they call the "customer vault," which will be unlocked annually to compare the current data with the previous year's inspection data. The information will be valuable when making an insurance claim or when selling the property.

Their home inspection specialist will be providing a recommendation for each inspection point, whenever necessary, or a clean bill of health will be given. They can also provide the Mighty Dog Visualizer service that will help property owners customize the exterior appearance of their home using photos of the home. Using their Curb Appeal Visualizer on their smartphone, property owners will be able to view their home's exterior with various product and color choices, allowing them to make the appropriate choice based on their project and preferences. The information obtained from the Curb Appeal Visualizer will also be stored in the Mighty Dog Customer Vault.

And finally, they will also offer a free estimate for property owners who want to undertake a roofing project. When they receive a request for a free estimate, they will send their home inspections specialists to the property to conduct the inspections and then these specialists will use the gathered information, which they will also store in the Customer Vault, to create a detailed plan for the proposed work on the roof. This will be a written proposal that contains all the important details necessary for the property owner to make a decision on whether to start with the project.
