Maná 75 has gotten a number of rave reviews on rating sites such as Google Maps, where one reviewer recently posted a detailed 4* review on their listing: <https://mgyb.co/s/pFbOJ>. This review, which was automatically translated from Dutch by Google, reads, "Looking for the best Paella restaurant in Barcelona, we arrive at Mana 75. Located by the beach really the W hotel. That is not to be missed. On the beach you see a mega large hotel in the shape of a sail. You have to reserve. Well, you don't have to, but it's handy. It can get very busy. But watch out! They do ask you a 100 euro deposit! The ambiance inside. Just like being in a beach house. But quite chic. You had a nice waiting area. While eating you had a view of the kitchen, where all the smells wafted into the restaurant. Well done. The service. We were nicely received and allowed to wait in the "waiting area". When we were brought to our table, we were well explained what the concept was and what the specialty of the day was. ? Questions were answered quickly and professionally. And they were really clear beforehand. You have to wait at least 30 minutes for your paella. It was freshly made. What they did well was bring all the food at once. Then we could eat together and it wasn't too cold. The food The prawns were beautifully red, large and juicy. The veal steak was buttery tender and well flavored with an onion compote. The pulpo was also gked on flavor and soft. The mashed potatoes were very good. Now what we came for: Paella You have a lot of choice, veggie (i.e. vegetables), fish, seafood, lobster, black paella (squid ink) and meat paella/ We went for a mix of seafood and one with a mix of fish and meat. The pans they are served in are really big. Half a meter in diameter with ease and perhaps a bit larger. You are obliged to pay double since those things are intended for two people. NOT IF YOU ARE A BIG EATER. Although the pans are large, they are not even a centimeter thick. So know that you should buy enough if you eat a lot. It looked really good and the taste was really good too. You can taste freshness and quality. ? The price I think the price is on the high side when it comes to quantity. But if you look at quality again not, so all in all it was in proportion. Recommended Yes, of course. You really must have tried this. It costs something, but you also get something in return.? This reviewer really enjoyed the restaurant, and ultimately felt it was worth the price, because of the high quality food and service.
