Napolin Accident Injury Lawyer, a personal injury law firm based in Ontario, CA, has released a blog post that explains what to do when one gets involved in a car accident with a drunk driver. As an auto injury lawyer Ontario residents can trust, they advise the accident victim to keep calm as much as possible while calling 911. If conscious, it is important to check on the other occupants of the vehicle to see if they are safe right after calling 911. It would be best to remain inside the car unless it is more dangerous, such as when the car is blocking traffic or when there is a gas leak.

A drunk driver who caused an accident might not wait for the arrival of emergency services or the police. Thus, it is important to get as much information as possible before the drunk driver is able to flee. If one has access to a phone and can do so without risk, it would be a good idea to take a photo of the drunk driver's car and its license plate. It may also help to take a photo of the site of the accident. And if possible, one should get the other driver's license and insurance details. All of these details may help the police and later on, one's accident injury lawyer.

And it is important to always remember that an accident causes stress for everyone involved, particularly a drunk driver. It would be a good idea not to shout at the other driver and accuse them of being the cause of the accident and being drunk. And one should never try to restrain the drunk driver because they may become violent, putting one at risk of getting attacked.

It is important to know one's legal rights after getting involved in a car accident with a drunk driver, especially if there is an injured child. It is important to ensure that one gets all the treatments required for injuries and to get drunk driver car accident legal assistance from Napolin Accident Injury Lawyer. And if a child is also injured in the accident, it is advisable to look for signs related to child injury, such as back or neck pain, nightmares, headaches, and more. And it is important to consult with a lawyer with experience in child injury.
