November 20, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mark Genereux, a personal injury lawyer Minneapolis residents have learned to rely upon for their legal problems, is celebrating the fact that he has been serving for 25 years. Through the Genereux Law Office, he shares his practice with 13 other attorneys. Together, they pool resources to deliver the best legal services in the Twin Cities. Over the past 25 years, Genereux has successfully represented hundreds of clients and he expects to be able to serve hundreds more.

"I have a passion for the law," explains Mark Genereux. "I believe in social justice and breaking through inequalities in a legal sense. This is why I am so happy to have been working for a quarter of a century now and I really want to thank the community as well, by continuing to work for them."

Genereux has a particular passion for helping the community address issues of systematic poverty. He does this through a number of initiatives aimed at improving the overall community and by ensuring justice is served. He has significant local knowledge and gives each of his clients the personal attention they deserve, which sets him apart from the big, box firms. He feels his work is incredibly efficient, allowing him to minimize the costs for his clients.

With the work provided by this personal injury lawyer Minneapolis residents have found that they have someone they can turn to with their legal problems. "When I was injured in a vehicle accident last year, my medical bills were astronomical," says one client. "Additionally, I put my family under a lot of stress because I was so miserable. Mr. Genereux listened to what had happened to me and provided me with excellent advice to implement in the immediate, as well as representing me in my compensation claim. I received very fair compensation and am once again able to enjoy life."

The Minnesota personal injury lawyer focuses mainly on personal injury claims. However, he also takes on cases involving workers' compensation. He feels these two areas of law are the most vital in terms of ensuring everyday people are able to be compensated for the mistakes of others.
