September 19, 2022 -

Sandis Moonwalks, a company based in Round Rock, TX, is pleased to announce that they have made it easy to book a bounce house rental in Austin TX that are assured to be safe and compliant with industry standards. They have made the process of renting jumpy houses easy for various kinds of events, such as backyard parties, school field days, or family reunions. In line with their focus on safety, they carry liability insurance as mandated by Texas law. They also ensure that their inflatables are inspected each year as required by state law. Safety is their foremost concern and will cancel an event due to bad weather or a hazardous location. In case of bad weather and the event is cancelled, they will provide the customer with a rain check and apply the customer?s payment towards any future party rentals. The customer will be given 12 months to reuse the funds on file. Once installed they will offer no rain checks but they will cancel and issue a rain check in the event that the weather is dangerous.

When booking online, the customer only needs to click on the ?Add to Cart? button. However, customers are reminded to check first if their venue has sufficient space for the inflatable. Each bounce house option has a ?More Info?? button that will provide details about the specific bounce house, including its actual size and the recommended setup area. It also indicates the recommended age group to ensure safety and the number of attendants needed. For instance, the Baby Shark Bounce has as actual size of 14 feet in height, 14 feet in width, and 14 feet in length and the setup area must be able to accommodate those dimensions. It is recommended for kids ages 3 and above and one adult is needed for supervision.
