Beverly Hills, California - October 05, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Jochen Chiropractic & Wellness Center, a chiropractor near me Beverly Hills, CA residents can go to, has announced their partnership with Hyperice, a provider of massage guns and other related innovative therapy products. Their partnership involves the application of the Hypervolt 2 handheld massage gun. This device is designed to provide deep tissue percussion massage for the purpose of relieving stiffness and tension in the muscles. Percussion massage therapy offers several advantages, such as: acceleration of warm up and recovery; improvement of flexibility and range of motion; reduction muscle stiffness and soreness; and improvement of muscle performance.

Dr. Stephen Jochen, D.C. says, "Huge shoutout to @hyperice for partnering with Jochen Wellness Center. With the Hyper Volt 2 Pro, breaking up knots and decreasing tension will make recovery a whole lot easier on our patients."

The Hypervolt 2 will be used in conjunction with chiropractic massage, which combines the advantages of massage therapy and chiropractic care. Massage provides a more conservative holistic strategy for helping with musculoskeletal issues by enhancing circulation, decreasing swelling, and relaxing the muscles. Chiropractic massage is expected to offer support for the muscles and will result into a decrease in pain and a boosting of bodily function. Chiropractic care offers the use of spinal manipulation to optimize the functioning of the nervous system. On the other hand, massage is the use of pressure to manipulate soft tissue and loosen tightened muscles. And trigger point massage relies on the application of pressure to a particular point to stimulate a therapeutic sensation to various areas as a way to relieve tension.

Jochen Chiropractic uses various kinds of therapeutic methods, such as cupping therapy near me Beverly Hills residents can rely on, and other approaches including massage therapy. Massage has been observed to help with chiropractic care before or after spinal alignment. Getting a massage before the chiropractic alignment will allow the spine to be more receptive to the adjustment because the massage has loosened up the muscles. And getting a massage after the adjustment may help in reducing the risk of muscles pulling the spine out of alignment because the muscles will continue to be soft and relaxed. Dr. Jochen may also examine the environmental factors that can improve the patient's condition. He may recommend some adjustments to ensure an ergonomic workplace or he may discuss sports techniques with an athlete to ensure that proper form is being used.

Chiropractic massage may be beneficial for various conditions. These include: carpal tunnel syndrome; fibromyalgia; lower back pain; osteoarthritis; premenstrual syndrome; rheumatoid arthritis; sciatica; scoliosis; and sports injuries. And those who are not suffering from pain can also benefit from chiropractic massage. This treatment offers various health and wellness benefits, including a relaxed body, increased blood flow, enhancement of the immune system, improvement of muscular tone, and decrease in spinal pressure.
