Chicago Website Design SEO Company (CWDSC), a digital marketing agency, has announced that company founder and CEO Jack Lombardi has released a WPX hosting review. In this particular review, he looks at what the WPX WordPress hosting service may be able to offer, his experience with their customer support, and whether WPX hosting can really live up to all the hype. This review is intended to help those who are considering WPX hosting for a new website or are planning to upgrade their current hosting to WPX hosting.

Jack Lombardi says, "Having a fast website is crucial to our online success. Unfortunately, I had to learn this the hard way, and believe me, poor website speed and poor support can kill your online success. It does not matter what your website is about online, you will benefit a great deal from a fast loading website. When the improvement of the website speed, it is easy to increase traffic. This is due to improved search engine visibility; search engines know the importance of load rate and how its load rate impacts the user experience."

He points out that fast loading of a WordPress website is the main reason for using WPX hosting. In addition, WPX hosting was developed by Terry Kyle, who is an SEO expert and therefore understands SEO needs. The need for a fast loading website is supported by data. According to a number of studies and according to Jack Lombardi's own experience, when a website takes 3 seconds or more to load, around 57 percent of site visitors tend to go to another relevant website. Approximately 80 percent of them will not return to the website and 50 percent of them will likely tell other people about their unsatisfactory experience with the website.

Jack Lombardi notes that the company behind WPX hosting is a well-established company and has been in business for quite some time, which means they are likely to be trustworthy. Aside from the fast loading, WPX hosting also has several vital elements. These include: daily website backups; WordPress website migration service with no charge; email services; user-friendly management dashboard; traffic handling; WPX hosting support; WPX hosting security; and free SSL.

Jack Lombardi notes that the user-friendly management dashboard is where WPX distinguishes itself. The dashboard is so simple that finding various settings only requires a few seconds. And WPX hosting has been designed to handle large traffic that is commonly found in huge e-commerce sites.

He also observes that WPX hosting has great customer support. This is important because having problems with a website is inevitable. Based on his experience with WPX hosting, he was able to get a response to a support ticket that he immediately sent when he noticed an issue with the site. Within 10 to 15 minutes, they informed him that they were working on the issue and the problem was resolved 15 to 30 minutes later.

In summary, he lists the pros for WPX hosting, which include: great performance with high loading speeds according to his experience and most WordPress hosting reviews; super fast support team; great pricing plans when compared to other hosts; ability to handle large websites eliminating any high traffic related issues; simplified interface with most elements only a click away; and ability of the host to handle other content management systems smoothly.
