September 16, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Brooklyn pedestrian accident attorney Samantha Kucher releases a new article (<https://www.rrklawgroup.com/car-accident-lawyer/new-york-city-pedestrian-injury-lawyer/>) that discusses the leading causes of pedestrian accidents in NYC. The lawyer mentions that New York is considered to be a pedestrian-friendly city with some of the highest rates of pedestrian traffic in the country.

"Without the same safety protections as a driver, pedestrians are far more vulnerable when they are involved in a motor vehicle accident. Even at relatively low speeds, a pedestrian can be seriously injured," says the Brooklyn pedestrian accident attorney.

The lawyer explains that New York City is vehicle-centric, meaning that pedestrians are allowed to share the streets with cars and other types of vehicles. Because of the negligence of some drivers, sidewalks can be dangerous for pedestrians who use them every day.

Attorney Samantha Kucher adds that there are many reasons pedestrian accidents happen in the city. These include speeding, distracted driving, driver fatigue, and aggressive driving. It can also include drug-impaired driving, alcohol-impaired driving, and failure to yield the right-of-way.

In the article, attorney Kucher explains how drivers often cause pedestrian accidents. But there are also instances when pedestrians cause the accident. Every pedestrian on New York City's streets should be familiar with the city's basic pedestrian laws.

The accident attorney also states that a motor vehicle accident involving a pedestrian can cause serious injuries and even fatalities. No matter how severe the impact is, injuries can still be devastating and may last a lifetime.

The lawyer enumerates the common injuries suffered by victims of pedestrian accidents in the city. This includes compound fractures, crushed bones, traumatic brain injuries, internal bleeding, paralysis, amputation, post-traumatic stress disorder, and wrongful death.

Lastly, attorney Samantha Kucher says that it is very important to seek the help of a pedestrian accident lawyer if someone has been the victim of a pedestrian accident. Having a skilled attorney may be able to help the victim receive the compensation they deserve.
