September 19, 2022 -
Bluffton, SC - Teeth expert from Off-Island Dental Care restores beautiful smiles through their microabrasion services.

Off-Island Dental Care says those chalky spots on the teeth called enamel microabrasion can be removed with the help of dental professionals. These enamel microabrasions are caused by tobacco use, certain medical conditions, or acid. However, enamel microabrasion is not the endgame. Clients can still gain back their beautiful smiles through the help of Off-Island Dental Care.

Dental Microabrasion is a proven solution against enamel microabrasion. The Dental Microabrasion method by Off-Island Dental Care is a safe, minimal treatment to correct discolored teeth. Microabrasion is usually suggested after bleaching has been proven ineffective. The discoloration of stains is typically confined to the enamel layer.

With Microabrasion Teeth, the dentist removes the stain with a textured polisher after applying a moderate acidic chemical. Multiple repetitions of the technique are carried out, each lasting approximately 10 seconds.

If nothing else works, veneers or crowns will be available as a last resort.

The dental care professionals offer a wide selection of dental services that bring out the beautiful smiles of every client they serve. The Best General Dentist can cater to different dental needs, from simple teeth cleaning to more complex procedures.
