November 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Australian Lattice & Timber, a business in South VIC, Australia, launched their new website a short time ago. The website, which can be visited on AustralianLatticeandTimber.com.au, is already proving to be very popular with people looking for lattice, timber, fencing and gates. They have now added an easy contact form to their website so that people can not only place orders, but ask questions as well.

"The timber business is a traditional business and we feel that we were stuck in time for quite a while," says Peter Clarke from Australian Lattice & Timber. "We're so happy to not only have entered the 21st century, but to have been successful at that as well. The only thing that was missing from our site was an opportunity for people to ask questions, and we have now added that."

The website allows people to buy fencing supplies online, but also a variety of other products. The family-owned and operated business, which opened its doors in 1999, supplies made-to-order lattice, timber, gates, fencing and hardware. Furthermore, they can help customers design and cost entire DIY projects. This includes pergolas and decking.

The work delivered by the company has always been greatly appreciated by the public. "I wanted to have a unique and original garden," says one happy customer. "While I did want decking and a pergola, I did not want one that could be bought by anybody in any store. Australian Lattice & Timber helped me design something absolutely beautiful and were able to supply all the necessary materials as well. Best of all was the fact that they were so affordable, it was cheaper to go through them than to buy something ready made."

Australian Lattice and Timber is looking forward to successfully working on many more projects, helping to beautify Australian homes and gardens one at a time. Their new website includes a variety of important pieces of information, including a gallery of work that they have completed so far. People are encouraged to visit the website for inspiration and information, or to contact the business and get started on their project.
