Bluffton, SC - With many options, Off-Island Dental Care helps South Carolina residents choose the best dental services to have their beautiful smiles again.

Among the hardest decisions to make is choosing between Dentures vs. Bridges. Dentures are removable tooth replacement alternatives. It allows patients to remove them whenever necessary. On the other hand, dental bridges are partial dentures that need at least one natural tooth to act as a base for support. Many what the best treatment for a patient is. Off-Island Dental Care says that there are several factors to consider when choosing.

The dental care company says dentures are for those who have already lost their teeth or gum tissue and if there is no tooth to support a fixed bridge. Those who prefer convenience can also go for dentures since they can be removed anytime. Usually, a denture lasts for at least five years,

Meanwhile, dental bridges can last up to 15 years. However, they are fixed on the mouth, and only a dentist can remove them. With its greater longevity than dentures, it can also cost more.

Still, the best way to know the best solution for broken teeth is a dental consultation. Off-Island Dental Care says before deciding between partial bridges and dentures, the dentist will consider the client?s dental requirements, way of life, and preferences. ?The best treatment is the one that preserves oral health, returns mouth function, and enhances aesthetic appearance,? says Dr. Michael D. Langehans, Bluffton?s favorite dentist.
