He has more than 20 years of experience in SEO and he is regarded as a thought leader in the industry. He is the CEO and the developer of Cora SEO Software for the SEO Tool Lab.

Lisa Parziale is also a keynote speaker at SEO Rockstars and is well known for her building of a 7-figure digital marketing agency that permitted her to quit her corporate job. She was the founder of Agency Fast Track that helps agency owners, web developers and SEO specialists learn and apply strategies and processes for building and scaling up their own 6- or 7-figure business.

It is important to note that SEO is the practice of enhancing the visibility of a website in the search engine results and helping people to find the website faster by understanding what users are looking for. It is divided into on-page SEO and off-page SEO. On-page SEO is focused on the optimization of what is on the website, such as content, structure, keyword use, and technical details. Off-page SEO deals with activities done outside the website, such as building links, guest blogging, social media marketing, and more.

Keyword research is a vital activity in SEO because it is the keyword that people type into the search box. It is important to determine those keywords that are likely to be used by people when trying to find information related to the products of services offered by the business. Related to this the quality of the content on the website. Usually this will need a professional writer to ensure that the articles are properly written. Google, one of the major search engines, employs an algorithm that is constantly evolving and changing and this is the basis for determining how websites are listed in the search engine results pages for a particular keyword. SEO is the process whereby various factors are adjusted to enable the site to rank high in the search engine results while complying with the standards set by Google and the other search engines.
