Vancouver, Washington business Zombiedisasterkits.com, has recently released their men or women's toiletry organizer kit to the UK market. The kit, known as 'Tisha's Choices Travel Toiletries Kit' has been designed to comply with global airport security screening procedures, thereby ensuring travelers no longer have to worry about missing their flights or going through the embarrassment of getting picked out of line. The kit has already proven to be very successful in the USA and it is expected to be equally popular in the United Kingdom. "According to airport security screening rules, you are allowed to carry on board a 1 quart sized plastic bag that closes, with bottles of liquids or gels that do NOT EXCEED 100ml per bottle," says Jillian Gregg from Zombie Disaster Kits. "These liquids and gels need to be in a clear closed bag set out and visible for inspection. Our Tisha's Choice bag comes with two clear Velcro in/out cases, for quick grab and display, as well as three clear liquid bottles that meet all these requirements." Those who are pulled out at security checks because they don't meet the necessary standards experience significant difficulties and delays. Sometimes, it even means missing a flight. Being able to prevent this at all times is generally first and foremost on the mind of any traveler. The travel kit has been designed to allow for easy passage through airport security. No longer will travelers have to worry about having their items removed or discarded because they are just a little too big or otherwise non-compliant. "Our new travel kit comes with three food-grade silicone bottles to contain your liquids and each one has a suction cup on its side so it can be stuck to a shower or wall when a convenient shelf isn't available," adds Jillian Gregg. "The bottles also have a pressure release valve to accommodate cabin pressure changes and minimize possible leaking and for ease of dispensing the product you put inside." Considering the popularity of this item in our own country, it is expected to do equally well in the UK. Airport security standards there are some of the highest in the world, particularly after the recent issues in Sharm El Sheik, which makes it even more important to fully comply with the rules. ###
