The Mabra Firm in Atlanta Explains Who Pays After A Personal Injury Accident

October 05, 2022

Atlanta, Georgia - October 05, 2022 -
The Mabra Law Firm has updated its blog with a post that explains who pays for the damages after a personal injury accident. The blog post states that a victim deserves compensation for medical expenses, property damage, and other losses, adding that an experienced Atlanta personal injury lawyer can help with legal representation. The Atlanta personal injury law firm states that lawsuits are always filed against the person responsible for the accident.

The best car accident law firm in Atlanta explains that an at-fault driver is guilty of negligence in most cases, including distracted driving, driving under the influence, or a traffic law violation. According to Ronnie Mabra, the top accident attorney in Atlanta, ?Although a personal injury attorney will file a case against the at-fault driver, they are usually paid by the negligent driver?s auto insurance provider. Many car accident claims involve payouts from the at-fault driver?s insurance company.? The top accident lawyer also lists different circumstances where other parties pay claims.

The best personal injury law firm in Atlanta explains that a truck accident is different from a car collision. In a truck accident, the driver could be held liable for injuries along with the trucking company, which pays victims harmed by negligent drivers. The blog post states that a trucking company can be held liable for compensation payouts if they commit various acts of negligence or safety violations.

According to The Mabra Firm, maintenance companies contracted out by a trucking company for the maintenance of the truck could be held liable for failing to meet standards and complying with regulations. The blog post also includes product manufacturers of defective truck parts on the list of those potentially liable to pay compensation to an accident victim.

The Mabra Firm further explains that it can be challenging for an accident victim to receive compensation if the person responsible for the accident is uninsured or under-insured, does not have a job or savings account, or assets to pay for the claims. The blog post states that certain costs will be subtracted from the settlement amount before a victim can be paid. This includes attorney fees, case costs, and medical liens and expenses.

Having a personal injury lawyer in Atlanta is the best strategy to fight an accident injury claim. An experienced accident attorney knows how a victim feels after an accident despite no fault of their own. They specialize in fighting compensation claims for accident victims to help them get the financial compensation they deserve.
