Quick and Careful Moving, a company providing residential and business movers in Farmington Hills, MI, has recently released a blog post that discusses the essential preparations needed before a company will call the business movers. Certain preparations are needed to ensure an efficient and hassle-free office relocation. Adam Crans, owner of Quick and Careful Moving, says, "Relocating to upgraded commercial premises indicates that the business is thriving, and you have identified a space that corresponds to business needs. First of all, visit the building in the new office location to assess its suitability for the items that you want to set in it. Examine the flooring and walls to establish if you need painters, carpenters, and other experts to work before you move the items. We advise you to partition the area to set the space for employees and office furniture before you call our team to move the items from your current location."

After preparing the new office for the move, the next thing to do is to identify the kind of moving company that would be required. It would be a good idea to interview a number of moving firms to find the most appropriate for the company's needs. For instance, the moving firm must have staff who are capable of handling the electronics equipment, such as computers and copiers, and also fragile glassware, if these are vital items in the office. Quick and Careful Moving has various transport vehicles and specialized cars that are suitable for safely transporting various kinds of items.

There is also the need to prepare for the proper coordination of the move to make sure that the commercial movers will be taking care of each item. The individual to be assigned as coordinator will ensure that a moving schedule will be followed and will also serve as the contact person for the moving company. For bigger businesses, it may be appropriate to assign a move coordinator for each department to make the moving process easier. It may also be a good idea to conduct several meetings to prepare for the move.

And finally, there is also the need to make the necessary changes to those things used for business communications, such as corporate forms, letterheads, and promotional printouts to ensure that the new address is indicated. It is also important to make sure that the new contact information is indicated on the company website to alert present and future clients. And suppliers and technicians may also need to be informed about the new office address to ensure the continued smooth operation of the business.
