NYC prenuptial agreement lawyer Juan Luciano (https://divorcelawfirmnyc.com/prenuptial-agreement-lawyer/) releases a new article explaining prenuptial agreements in New York. The lawyer mentions that it is important to think about protecting assets before entering a marriage. Especially for two people who were able to gain significant assets (or debts, in some cases) before the marriage happened, prenuptial agreements are very important.

?A prenuptial agreement in New York is a contract entered into by two people before they are married. It covers certain financial terms of the marriage and specifies the division of assets and debts should the marriage to an end or in case one spouse dies. Without the benefit of a prenuptial agreement, the State of New York makes the ultimate decision about what happens to the marital property in the event of a divorce, a separation, or the death of one of the parties,? the NYC prenuptial agreement lawyer says.

The lawyer says that a premarital agreement can protect assets from disputes, divorce, or even death. A prenup agreement can act like an insurance policy for the marriage. People often think that it is unnecessary to have one, but it can be a good preparation for unexpected situations such as divorce and death. A prenup is also important for a couple who has children from former relationships because it ensures that assets that are earmarked will go to the children upon the death of a parent.

Attorney Juan Luciano adds that prenuptial agreements are simply drawn to avoid legal and financial misunderstandings if the couple divorces. A prenuptial agreement is not just for the wealthy. These agreements can serve many different purposes and can protect a couple in a variety of situations.

In the article, attorney Luciano adds, ?When attorneys draft a prenup, the couple is feeling optimistic about the future and level-headed. There are no hard feelings and everyone is willing to please and compromise. Many couples even say that the prenup process has helped them prevent financial disagreements in the marriage.?

Lastly, the lawyer emphasizes the importance of having a skilled prenuptial agreement lawyer when it comes to matters like creating a prenuptial agreement. Having an experienced lawyer may be able to help the client explore their options and make the best decision that will benefit the family.
