November 18, 2022 -

General contractor coaching company, The Aspire Institute has announced the launch of its new website, built by Idaho-based digital marketing and design agency Xtremify.

The Aspire Institute provides training to construction company owners and trains them to make their businesses more profitable. The company's newly launched website highlights all the advantages of its coaching services to general contractors, such as real-time industry-specific business coaching, in-person interactive classes, and personalized business intelligence for their clients.

The Aspire Institute's new website also showcases the extremely promising results that the company has achieved for its clients. For example, the website reveals that construction business owners who trained at The Aspire Institute reported a 75 % increase in their net profit within the first 12 months, a 36% average workload reduction, and over $207 million increased annual profits.

In a featured video, the company's President & CEO, Fred Farris, talks about his journey as a small business owner, how he discovered the teachings of the company's founder Ken Brookings, and his passion for helping hardworking general contractors. He also gives viewers some insight into the type of business owner who is the ideal client for The Aspire Institute and shares some advice that has yielded results in the past. Visitors can view more such videos about the contractor coaching company and the people who run it by heading over to its YouTube channel.

Fred Farris talks about the services offered by The Aspire Institute by saying, "The construction industry is a highly competitive business to be in. Not only are you dealing with logistical and technical challenges, but changing economic factors such as inflation also tremendously impact your bottom line. At the Aspire Institute, we use our years of experience to help businesses that are barely breaking even and turn them profitable within realistic time frames. We urge you to visit our newly launched website to find out more about what we have to offer and sign up for our programs or workshops today. We can help you unlock the true potential of your construction business."

For visitors who feel that the coaching services offered by The Aspire Institute are right for them, the company has published the dates of its upcoming workshops, unique one-day events that introduce Aspire's Business Acceleration courses. They touch on topics such as custom profit analysis, an implementable road map to success with a one-on-one consultation, the key to getting immediate results, fundamentals of targeted marketing, and how to smartly hire the right people for the business.

The website also details the Aspire Business Mastery Program, the company's flagship coaching program that provides its clients' entire management teams with coaching, classes, and customized resources. The program's classes are held at the company's headquarters in Sandpoint, Idaho, and are broken up into three sets.

The Launch class series takes place within the first 3 to 6 months of joining Aspire and covers marketing, sales, estimating, production, feedback, and development, as well as integration of the Aspire Intelligence (AI) System. The Advanced class series is designed for clients who have completed the Launch series and have been in the coaching program for at least 6 months. It introduces new topics focusing on increased discussions, sharing best practices, and formulating custom strategies for each client's unique business needs. Finally, the Master class series focuses on higher-level business practices that assure long-term growth and success. The Contractor Coaching Master Class series is aimed at ownership and senior management employees and is offered only once a year.

Construction business owners can contact The Aspire Institute at (208) 597-7294 for inquiries. Potential clients are also requested to visit the new website to browse through tons of free helpful resources, learn more about the people working at The Aspire Institute, and read the testimonials the company has received over the years from others like them.
