The Mabra Law Firm Suggests Important Steps for Accident Victims After a Hit-and-Run Accident in Atlanta

November 09, 2022

Atlanta, Georgia - November 09, 2022 -
The Mabra Law Firm has posted a detailed blog post to help accident victims decide what to do immediately after a hit and run in Atlanta. The team of Atlanta hit-and-run-accident lawyers has experience helping victims get justice after such an incident. The blog post explains that a hit-and-run accident can leave the victim feeling helpless, frustrated, and angry, suggesting a few steps to protect their interests. The Atlanta personal injury law firm emphasizes the role of an experienced Atlanta car accident attorney to navigate the legal process for victims of accidents and help get them the compensation they deserve.

The blog post shares a few tips for accident victims to report a hit-and-run accident in Atlanta. The Mabra Firm advises victims to call 911 immediately if someone has been injured due to the accident. The blog post further lists the importance of taking photos of the accident scene and any damages to the vehicle, as well as advising victims to write down all relevant information about the accident. The blog post emphasizes the need to report the accident immediately by contacting the insurance company directly or filing an online claim.

The Mabra Firm?s team of Atlanta accident lawyers is trusted for their skills and experience in handling hit-and-run accident cases for victims. The blog post explains that such an accident may be intentional or unintentional and could prove fatal in some cases.

According to The Mabra Firm, there are important pieces of evidence for victims to collect immediately after a hit-and-run accident. Calling the police to the accident scene tops the list. The Mabra Law Firm also emphasizes the need to collect further evidence, take photos of the damages and injuries, and fetch information about the other driver and passengers in those vehicles.

The article advises victims to write down the details of what happened, including the vehicle make/model, license plate number, driver description, and any other details that might come up later when discussing what happened with law enforcement or insurance representatives. The best accident attorney in Atlanta emphasizes the need to note the time of the accident and inform the insurer about the accident immediately. Some states have a 24-hour timeline for reporting any hit-and-run accident damages.

The blog post agrees that a personal injury lawyer with experience in handling hit-and-run cases is the best person to fight for the compensation claim on behalf of victims. The top injury law firm in Atlanta has many years of experience in representing accident victims injured as a result of hit-and-run cases. The team is dedicated to handling the legal process on behalf of victims. The Mabra Firm represents accident victims of drivers who hit their vehicles or other property, who caused bodily injury or death to other people on the road, who are not insured but still fled the scene due to lack of money to pay for damages, and who were under the influence at the time of the accident.

The blog post answers the most pressing questions for accident victims who could not collect any information about the at-fault driver. According to the personal injury law firm in Atlanta, the accident victim can still pursue legal action against a hit-and-run driver even if they are not found by police or anyone else involved in investigating the case. The article cites the legal requirement in Georgia for all motorists to carry insurance coverage for their vehicles.

The Mabra Firm?s accident attorneys in Atlanta explain that the insurance company of the at-fault driver is required under state law to pay for damages caused by their driver?s actions. The blog post emphasizes the need to file a police report, take pictures of the scene along with damage to the vehicle, and get the license plate number of the other vehicle. Additionally, the blog post outlines the importance of receiving timely medical treatment. It further states that in case the accident victim has only liability coverage and no collision coverage, the other driver?s insurance company must pay for repairs.

The blog post states that the accident victim?s auto insurance company may also help with any lost income or out-of-pocket expenses related to time away from work while recovering from injuries sustained during an accident. The state of Georgia has a two-year statute of limitations for filing a personal injury claim against an at-fault driver responsible for the accident. The top hit-and-run lawyers in Atlanta at The Mabra Firm can fight for maximum compensation and hold the negligent driver accountable for causing the accident victim?s damages.

The Mabra Firm?s hit-and-run lawyers in Atlanta work hard to build a strong case against the negligent driver on behalf of the victim. Accident victims can fill out the form on The Mabra Firm?s website to get started on a free consultation.
