November 23, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Service Alert, a heating, ventilation and air conditioning company in Tampa, FL, has announced that all its employees are now registered with Ask the Seal.com. This means that when it comes to air conditioning Tampa residents are guaranteed to receive high quality service from fully trained workers. The business has numerous other registrations and feel that Ask the Seal.com is like the icing on the cake.

"We have various registrations and accreditations that prove we deliver high quality work and excellent customer service," says Dan Wilkie from Service Alert. "However, we wanted to take that one step further. Because our experts enter people's homes, we felt that it was important that we offer them the security of knowing that we are licensed, insured and only have employees that have had a full background check."

In terms of air conditioning repair Tampa FL authorities have warned residents in particular that it is incredibly important to always check the identity of technicians and engineers entering their homes. There have been numerous reports of people falling victim to engineers and technicians who have been falsely background checked, or who have not been checked at all. Service Alert wants to make sure that their clients are guaranteed not just to get an excellent service, but also that they are completely safe at all times.

The services offered by the business have been greatly appreciated by Tampa residents. "I wanted to let you know that I felt I received excellent customer service yesterday when your service technician came to my home for a routine checkup of my AC system," says Mr. Lewis from Land O'Lakes, FL. "The tech was courteous and obviously very knowledgeable."

Besides being registered with Ask the Seal.com, the air conditioner repair Tampa business also has a number of other seals of approval. They are a Carrier Factory Approved Dealer, have an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau, are listed on Angie's List, and have RACCA and NATE accreditation. The company's goal is to deliver the highest possible quality work and customer service and they are always striving to improve themselves.
