Being a transparent law firm, MG Compensation Lawyers Sydney always shares its victories with the clients so they can understand what goes behind the closed doors of court and motivate them to pursue their legal rights to compensation as well

MG Compensation Lawyers Sydney is always proud to share their victories with their clients to inspire them to seek justice and compensation. One of their cases was related to an industrial worker who was severely burnt while working. The team not only guided the client every step of the way but also managed to get him a whopping $750,000. Although this amount won't undo the physical and psychological damage this incident did, it'll help him get the best medical treatment and support his family while he recovers.

The client was working in an industrial facility with another worker operating a welding machine. The welding machine caused the explosion, which left severe burns on the client's body and the psychological agony resulting from that injury. The next step was to make a Workers Compensation claim, which they did, and the liability was accepted. MG Compensation Lawyers Sydney's team helped the client at every step, including paying for all his legal fees, thanks to their no-win, no-fee policy.

MGs medico-legal doctor assessed the client, and the Whole Person Impairment claim was made. They had to work tirelessly to ensure every legal prerequisite was met, leaving no room for deniability or low compensation, and as a result, they got the client a settlement for $750,000 inclusive of cost/ clear of Worker's Compensation payments. The complete case study can be found on MG's website here.
