November 10, 2022 -

Manhattan divorce lawyer Richard Shum recently launched his newly improved website - Law Office of Richard Roman Shum, Esq., PLLC. The divorce lawyer upgrades the previous website in order to make sure that the website is friendly and easy to navigate. In order to serve both new users and old clients more efficiently, the website was upgraded.

?When it comes to custodial, marital, and financial battles, nothing is more important than choosing the right lawyer. My years of working with clients to avoid litigation when possible, while getting the best possible results when litigation becomes unavoidable, have helped me develop an effective method of comprehensive strategic planning for each individual client, rather than a one-size-fits-all approach,? the Manhattan divorce lawyer says on his website.

On the new website, visitors are able to find easy access to information about family law including divorce, child custody, child support, and spousal support. The visitors may also be able to find information about business law and real estate on the website.

The lawyer?s practice areas can be easily found at the top of the page. The visitor can navigate to different pages on the website in order to read more information on the practice area they need. Aside from family law, attorney Shum is also able to provide legal advice on transactional law and other business-related legal matters.

According to the divorce lawyer, ?I understand firsthand how overwhelmingly stressful legal battles are for you and your family, due to the emotionally charged nature of the situation. my goal is to fight and win for you so that you can breathe again and focus on what truly matters: time with your family.?

The new website of attorney Shum focuses on making important information about his practice areas more accessible and comprehensive for his clients. The website also has a form ready for the visitor to fill out if they want to request a consultation with the divorce attorney.

Lastly, the divorce attorney also encourages visitors to his website to reach out if they have any questions about family law or business law. The visitor may also reach out directly on the website if they would like to schedule a consultation. Attorney Shum and his team of legal professionals are experienced in helping clients navigate the complicated terrain of family law and business law.
