LEAD Conveyancing Geelong, a conveyancing law firm that operates in Geelong and across Victoria, was happy to announce that they offer new conveyancing assistance on Monday. The service expansion is due to the never-ending demand for conveyancing services in the state. They want to serve a more significant number of clients to contribute considerably to the betterment of Australia. For more information about LEAD Conveyancing Geelong, visit their official website.

Before the inception of the new services, LEAD Conveyancing Geelong only offers buyers' and sellers' conveyancing. Added legal services are contract drafting, contract review and transfer conveyancing. Transfer conveyancing is available on existing houses, units, apartments, off-the-plan properties and vacant land. Contract review is an assessment of section 32, also known as the vendor's statement and contract of sale of the property. Lastly, contract drafting is a systematic composition of section 32 and the contract of sale.

Like before, all the services are still available at a fixed price, excluding third-party services costs. Interested clients may visit their official website to get a fixed quote using their free online conveyancing fee calculator. The free quote will show a detailed breakdown of the costs of the whole transaction from the pre-signing contract to the date of settlement. It also includes the possible expenses of third-party fees such as PEXA fee, verification of identity, transfer duty, registration fee and other disbursements that may occur throughout the process.

Legal Director and Founder of LEAD Conveyancing Geelong, Trinh Thai, stated that the new services signify their commitment to improving the quality of their business to serve people better. "The new legal services we have added are not just to earn more profit. The reason behind this expansion is to be a catalyst for more people to achieve one of their most important life goals. My team and I genuinely care about our clients, especially first-home buyers. We fully understand how important this is for them. Having their first home means providing lifetime shelter for their children and possibly their grandchildren. It is a once-in-a-lifetime type of transaction for most people. That is why we always strive to improve the overall quality of our service."
