Reaching another milestone, Michael Crest, the owner of expert SEO service providers MRC SEO Consulting, has achieved the professional accreditation from Google by receiving Google Adwords Certification and proving his expertise once again in the field of online marketing.

Online marketing experts and SEO strategists have been providing their services for years, Michael says, but what people and businesses look for is someone who proves his/her expertise with the results and their achievements. The SEO consulting experts MRC SEO Consulting have been providing the successful results to their clients and now their owner Michael Crest feels he has proven his expertise again by receiving the Google Adwords Certification, an accreditation by Google to the professionals, acknowledging their expertise over online marketing and advertisements.

Talking about the occasion, Michael said that the certification is an excelent addition to his and his company's successful portfolio. He said that SEO is all about providing the best and top most search rankings for their clients so that their businesses can make their online presence strong and get more clients. To him, this certification is more proof that he and his company have the technology and expert strategies to give better-than-expected results to their clients and make their businesseses benefit from highly enhanced online visibility.

As reported, MRC SEO Consulting is also a brain child of Michael and has been providing exciting results over the period to its clients. Talking about the company and why it is different from others, Michael said that MRC SEO Consulting is based on the idea of providing high ROI to their clients in the form of enhanced traffic and a widened client base. ?I only work with businesses which I am sure I can help grow,? he said. He added that this approach has been a key reason for the high success rate of his company.

He further said that he and his team are experts in what they do and are passionate about their work. He mentioned that they understand the importance of a strong online presence of businesses and thus use their expertise to its maximum in order to benefit the client. He also said that since their motto is of profit with complete transparency, they provide their personal contact information to their clients so that they can be in touch anytime. Also, they provide monthly reports to them for keeping them in loop.
