November 14, 2022 -
New Jersey criminal defense lawyer Adam M. Lustberg (https://www.lustberglaw.com/) releases a new article that discusses the role of a criminal defense lawyer in a criminal case. The lawyer mentions that no matter how major or minor the criminal charge is, it is very important to have attorneys who may be able to help fight for a favorable outcome for the defendant.

According to the New Jersey criminal defense lawyer, ?In instances of minor criminal charges, it may seem like an appropriate decision to accept the charges, pay a minor fine, and move on with your life. While this may seem like a good idea at the time, this decision could ultimately come back to haunt you months, or even years, down the road.?

The lawyer explains that whenever someone is convicted of a crime in New Jersey, it may remain on their record for a long time. It can have a very significant impact on their lives. This is why attorney Lustberg suggests that if someone is convicted of a criminal offense, they should seek the help of an experienced criminal defense attorney.

Attorney Adam M. Lustberg mentions that having a criminal attorney may be able to help defendants understand and protect their rights. A criminal attorney may be able to help the defendant seek alternative sentencing options like a plea deal, or help them receive a reduced conviction that will have a lesser impact on the defendant?s future.

In the article, attorney Lustberg also enumerates the different types of criminal offenses in New Jersey. He says that the punishment for these crimes can vary depending on how serious the offense is. These types of crimes include DWI/DUI, domestic violence, drug crimes, theft, assault, homicide, and sexual assault.

Furthermore, the criminal defense attorney says that there is a wide range of penalties that can be imposed on those who are convicted of crimes. These penalties can range from fines to years in prison. Fortunately, a charge doesn?t mean a conviction and this is where a skilled lawyer comes in.

Lastly, the lawyer emphasizes that it is very important for a defendant to seek the help of an experienced criminal defense lawyer right away. Having an attorney who understands the complexities of the legal system may be able to help the defendant receive a more favorable outcome for their case.
