

Construction Lawyers in Brisbane Release the Ultimate Guide to the Security of Payments Act in Queensland 2022

November 14, 2022

BRISBANE, QLD - November 14, 2022 -
The guide is designed to help everyone in the construction and building industry learn their rights and what they can do in case of a payment dispute with their employers

The Australian construction industry generates a whopping $360 billion in revenue and is expected to grow faster. However, this growth is hampered by payment claim disputes, making up 20% of the overall disputes in this industry.

If the contractors are not paid timely and fairly for their hard work, they'll stop the work at the risk of facing further losses. This is a serious issue as the construction crew, material vendors, and all stakeholders in a project need to be paid timely so they can take care of their families while they continue working. This is where they need a guide on how to get their rightly owed amount back, and the Ultimate Guide to the Security of Payments Act in Queensland 2022 can help them know their rights.

The SOP Act was established to protect contractors and builders from unlawful payment holds and ensure they are paid fully within an established timeline. The guide published by Construction Lawyers Brisbane under the SOP Act in Queensland goes into great detail about the claim process, requirements for making payment claims, schedule of payments, adjudication application and response, and many other questions that one might have related to the payment claims under the SOP Act in Queensland.

The guide also explains the different types of payment hold in detail, the right timeline for filing the claims, and the requirements for adjudication application for the best chances of winning the case.

Although the guide explains every requirement and the procedure in great detail, contractors still need a lawyer with experience in dealing with disputes in construction-legal-commercial space and help contractors get paid the due amount. The construction lawyer better understands the technicalities and nitty-gritty of the Payments Act. Plus, every dispute has different circumstances, so a legal consultant can study the case and prepare the best course of action for maximum winning chances. Construction Lawyers in Brisbane can help.

"Wouldn't you want to talk about your project's construction-legal-commercial issues with someone who really understands them? We have the resources, experience and technical understanding of the industry and its issues to get you your money back" - Team Construction Lawyers Brisbane

The law firm's founder has over 30 years of first-hand experience in the Australian construction and building industry. He has MEP and F trade qualifications, acted as a Design Engineer, Engineering Manager, QS, Planner and Project Manager, and studied construction law. Besides, they offer a no-win, no-fee policy along with a free consultation. This way, their clients can better determine whether or not to get their services after talking to them and if they decide to get on board, they don't have to pay anything until they win the case.

The Construction Lawyers' team takes care of all the litigation fees, case preparation, court filing fees, getting expert witness reports etc. They ensure their clients who are already fighting for their hard-earned money don't have to pay anything else in legal matters.
