The article discusses how 'not having some advice about packing may leave travellers in the lurch and it might even mean that they end up leaving something behind or packing the wrong things.'

According to the article, 'Taking an all-weather coat with when travelling, will keep one warm and dry regardless of where they are, and making sure that they have a comfortable pair of shoes with them. Packing light means less luggage and this will make their travelling easier.'

The article goes on to state that 'one should consider how much time they will spend travelling in a certain country and whether or not they will be washing the clothing that they will be taking with them. Also women should keep their jewellery to a minimum, especially sentimental jewellery, as it can easily be lost or even stolen during their travels.'
