Lehi, Utah - November 18, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Waite Vision, a state-of-the-art vision correction center in Utah published an article about Custom Lens Replacement Surgery. Many people begin to experience vision difficulties in their forties that they have never had before. This often necessitates the use of reading glasses or bifocals and the loss of visual independence once.

Custom Lens Replacement, also referred to as Refractive Lens Exchange (RLE), is a procedure offered by Waite Vision to help improve vision and eliminate the need for glasses including readers. This procedure is permanent and involves the replacement of the eye's natural lens with an artificial intraocular lens that will last a lifetime. Another benefit of the procedure is it prevents the development of cataracts and eliminates the need for cataract surgery in the future.

Waite Vision explains in the article how the procedure works and the different types of lens options and customizations. Custom Lens Replacement surgery can correct nearsightedness, farsightedness, astigmatism, and presbyopia. Waite Vision states many of their patients ask why they didn't have the procedure sooner.

The cost of the procedure is discussed in the article and compared to the cost of wearing glasses or contact lenses over a lifetime. Waite Vision encourages patients to see the cost of the surgery as an investment in their vision that will last a lifetime.

The article also answers questions prospective patients may have about Custom Lens Replacement Surgery. It talks about how long the procedure takes, if there is any discomfort, if insurance covers a custom lens replacement surgery, the main benefits of the procedure and more.
