New York City uncontested divorce attorney Richard Shum (https://www.romanshum.com/blog/what-is-the-divorce-process-in-new-york-like/) releases a new article explaining the divorce process in New York. The lawyer mentions that filing a divorce can be an intimidating experience for a lot of people. It can also be a time-consuming and expensive process. This is why it is important to seek the help of an experienced New York City divorce attorney.

?An uncontested divorce is a kind of divorce where both spouses are in agreement on the terms of their divorce. This means that they have settled on the major aspects of their divorce such as child support and custody, visitation, asset distribution, spousal support, etc.,? the New York City uncontested divorce attorney says.

The lawyer mentions that in order to file for a divorce in New York, there are preconditions that must be followed. These preconditions include residency requirements and the grounds for divorce. If the couple does not meet these requirements, they are not able to file for a divorce in New York.

Attorney Richard Shum adds that New York divorce follows the designations of a plaintiff and a defendant just like in most legal cases. The plaintiff is said to be the person who files for the divorce and their husband or wife is the designated defendant. The plaintiff will have to pay a fee of $210 to have an index number assigned to the case.

In the article, the attorney Shum adds, ?Informing the Defendant that the Plaintiff has filed for a divorce is an important step in the divorce process. This is to ensure that the Defendant?s rights are also protected. A Summons With Notice (or a Summons and Verified Complaint, depending on the grounds for divorce) needs to be delivered to the Defendant.?

Lastly, the divorce lawyer emphasizes that having an uncontested divorce lawyer can help the couple ensure they have all the legal support they need when it comes to determining the best child support order for their family. A skilled attorney can help the couple draft their agreements and make sure that the agreement is legally enforceable.
