

Local Company Realizes a Fast Response is the Key for Proper Water Damage Restoration in Phoenix

December 07, 2022

Mesa, Arizona - December 07, 2022 -

Mesa, Arizona-based Dry Star Restoration has been taking care of the messes that leaking and flooding water has created in homes and businesses in its area for many years now. In that time, the company has learned that a fast response is critical when it comes to effective water damage restoration in Phoenix and many of the other Arizona locations that they serve. Dry Star Restoration's owner, Richard Appel, says, "Water is one of the most necessary substances on earth. We use it to drink, bathe, wash clothes, and for the many other benefits it offers us. But water is not your friend when it is no longer properly contained in your plumbing or when a flooding or other unusual situation brings it into your home in an unwanted manner. In these cases, water can do an amazing amount of structural and other damage to your home or business in a very short amount of time. That's why it's always our goal to be on our way in 90 minutes or less whenever someone calls us with an immediate water cleanup need."

Appel went on to say that many factors contribute to how quickly they can respond to water damage situations when they arise. It all starts with their well-trained crews being on standby 24 hours a day and having vehicles that are always kept stocked with the latest and best water damage mitigation equipment. So, once they get a request for water cleanup help, there is no wasted time getting equipment ready, refueling trucks, or having to do any other steps that will cost valuable minutes in the water damage restoration process. He says that once their crews arrive on the scene, they will assess the water cleanup situation and go about vacuuming up any large amounts of standing water and then position industrial-size drying fans and spraying formulas that will prevent future mold growth.

Those that have left glowing reviews on Dry Star Restoration's services often specifically mention the company's fast response time. Ryan LeSueur stated, "We had an angle stop fail in our upstairs bathroom which caused water to leak through the ceiling down to the first floor. We were recommended to Dry Star by the plumbers we use (Second Opinion Plumbing). They responded very quickly, were very professional, and great to work with. Dry Star was also able to get the issue taken care of at a fair price. I definitely recommend them!" Dennis Relihan proclaimed, "Our water heater ruptured, and this caused much water to go into one of our bedrooms. Our plumber suggested Dry Star and they came out within an hour and started the cleanup process. The team of Aaron and Jose did a fantastic job cleaning up the water and setting up equipment to dry out the areas. They were very professional and courteous throughout the five days that were needed to dry everything out. They were also on time every time and called to update us on their coming to the house. We would highly recommend this company for any type of restoration."

Besides their fast response times, Dry Star Restoration is also known for having calls answered 24/7 by live operators, offering free estimates before starting the work, billing directly to insurance companies, and having technicians that are IICRC Certified, Experienced, and Professional. It's a company that is also BBB A+ Rated and a 2018 Angie's List Super Service Award Winner. Appel also talked about one other significant advantage that those that use Dry Star Restoration get when they contract with them after a flooding event. His company is one of the rare restoration companies that also have remodeling crews. So just one phone call gets a home or business owner not only a crew that can remove all traces of water and moisture from their property but also a crew that can put their property's interior back together again. They have also become known for the quality of work that their remodeling crews do no matter how big or small the project is. More on the water, fire, mold and other restoration services this company excels at can be seen on Dry Star Restoration's website.
