December 01, 2022

JACKSON HEIGHTS, NY - December 01, 2022 -

NYC heavy equipment accident attorney Keetick L. Sanchez (https://accidentlawyer-queens.com/new-york-city-heavy-equipment-accident-lawyer/) releases a new article explaining the contractor and owner?s duty under the law in New York. The lawyer explains that contractors and owners in NY are legally required to ensure safe work conditions, and that includes making sure workers are equipped with the right equipment and machinery.

?The construction industry remains one of the industries with the most injury occurrences in New York City. And while we have serious labor laws in New York requiring safe conditions for workers, construction and heavy equipment accidents happen far too frequently. Many of these accidents are due to the carelessness and negligence of others,? the NYC heavy equipment accident attorney says.

The lawyer states that construction sites require many pieces of equipment. If they use large, heavy equipment, construction workers could sustain serious or fatal injuries. Victims of accidents may be eligible for compensation if the owners, contractors, or workers are negligent in maintaining heavy equipment.

Attorney Keetick Sanchez also adds that heavy machinery is used often in construction and requires skill and training. OSHA has guidelines that can be used by workers to help them use machine parts. If these machines aren't used properly, they can cause serious injury.

Attorney Sanchez also addresses the dangers of heavy machinery on construction sites. Equipment malfunctions, overloading, poor inspection, and other hazards are all possible.

According to the lawyer, ?Most injured construction workers in NY will be covered by workers? compensation insurance. Workers? compensation will cover the costs of injuries, regardless of fault. But there are some drawbacks to workers? compensation benefits. Workers? compensation is limited in the number of benefits and how long you can receive them. In addition, when you accept a workers? compensation settlement, you are waiving all rights of suing your employer.?

Lastly, attorney Sanchez emphasizes the importance of seeking the help of an experienced heavy equipment accident attorney. Having a skilled attorney may be able to help victim understand their rights and receive the compensation they are entitled to.
