FALLS CHURCH, VA - December 19, 2022 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Brusco Vision, the first practice of its kind in the Washington, D.C., area, recently published an article about the costs of LASIK. The article, titled "How Much Does LASIK Cost In DC," by Dr. Michael Brusco talks about what factors go into the cost a vision correction center charges for LASIK and how the location affects the cost. In addition, Brusco Vision gives information about different payment options available to pay for LASIK vision correction.

According to the article, four main factors are responsible for the different price points at which the life-changing LASIK procedure is offered. They are the doctor's experience, the nature, and quality of equipment used during the procedure, the bundled after-care services, and the location of the clinic. The latter is significant as establishing and running a vision correction center is much more expensive in densely populated regions such as D.C. which generally have a high standard of living, higher rents, and higher wages as compared to the rest of the nation. As a result, in D.C., LASIK costs range on average from $2,300 to $3,300 per eye. Since patients are paying a premium price for visiting a clinic in the Washington Metropolitan area they should also consider other factors before settling on a medical provider.

Brusco Vision was founded by Michael A. Brusco, MD, FACS, who also assumes the role of the Virginia vision correction center's Medical Director. With over 40,000 corneal-based vision correction procedures, such as high-definition all-laser LASIK and PRK, under his belt, Dr. Brusco meets all the criteria that one should look for in a surgeon. Dr. Brusco's experience and award-winning clinical acumen are backed by the latest and best equipment and technology, both diagnostic and therapeutic. Moreover, the Falls Church, Virginia, LASIK center also offers all-inclusive pricing that includes all the enhancements and post-op medications that a patient might need. The simple and honest pricing structure ensures that patients won't be left with sticker shock when the procedure is over.

Dr. Brusco elaborates on the cost of LASIK procedures in D.C. by saying, "LASIK is a once-in-a-lifetime investment that will yield you great dividends in terms of the novel experiences it can unlock for you. Our patients also tell us that, following the procedure, they feel a profound sense of freedom when they finally get to enjoy their natural vision as nature intended. Though you might find the pricing a little intimidating, getting the LASIK procedure early makes practical financial sense. For example, patients who have LASIK at the age of 18 might end up saving more than $40,000 in vision care-related expenses by the time they are 40 years old. So, why delay the inevitable? You can get the perfect vision you have always dreamed of and also save money in the long term. Reach out to our D.C. LASIK center today to book an initial consultation."

Brusco Vision offers several flexible payment options using cash, check, or credit card to its clients, including 24 months of interest-free financing. Additionally, it also accepts payments made through the patient's Health Savings Account (HSA), Flexible Spending Accounts (FSA), Health Reimbursement Account (HRA), and Medical Savings Account (MSA).

The article from Brusco Vision then goes on to answer many more frequently asked questions about the cost of LASIK in D.C. such as whether health insurance plans pay for LASIK, does the experience of the clinic's staff impact its cost, is LASIK tax deductible, does Bladeless LASIK eye surgery cost extra, and many more.

Brusco Vision offers a wide range of vision correction modalities to its D.C. clients including SBK LASIK, Visian EVO ICL, Custom Lens Replacement (CLR), SMILE, Refractive Cataract Surgery, and ASA PRK. The clinic has proven to be so popular with local and national patients that in recent years Dr. Brusco was performing close to 1% of all LASIK procedures in the United States. The D.C.-based boutique-style laser vision correction has also received several glowing testimonials from happy patients. It has a perfect 5.0 out of 5.0 score on its Google Business Profile from over 110 reviews.
