January 03, 2023 -
Abrams Roofing & Sheet Metal, a roofing contractor based in Louisville, KY, is happy to announce that they have expanded their service area to include Middletown, KY. They offer roof installation, roof replacement, roof repair, roof cleaning, gutter repair, siding repair, siding replacement, commercial roofing installation, commercial roofing repair, and more. With their expansion to include Middletown, residents of this independent, home rule-class city and a previous neighborhood of Louisville, can have their roofs in tip-top shape and assured to protect their homes and properties from the elements.

To ensure that they can provide a more precise estimate for the roofing service requirements of a particular home or building, they also provide free roofing inspections for all customers, both residential and commercial. After the home has been exposed to strong winds and heavy rain, it is important to have the roof inspected for find out if there is any damage to make sure that the damage will worsen and become more serious and more expensive to repair.

For residential roofs, Abrams Roofing & Sheet Metal can provide a roofing contractor Middletown, KY residents can depend on. These services can be: residential storm damage repair; residential roof repair; residential roof replacement; or metal roofing services. According to the National Severe Storm Laboratory, severe thunderstorms in the Louisville area can produce heavy rain, ice, hail, and winds over 100 mph. After a storm, it is advisable to contact a professional roofing services company like Abrams to check on the damages. They will be checking for damages not just on the roof but also on the gutters and exterior parts of the house of building, such as the sidings.

After assessing the amount of damage on the roof and gutters, the roofing professionals from Abrams will recommend the kind of work to be done, whether it is a roof repair or a roof replacement. The homeowner?s insurance policy may like cover for storm damage from wind, hail, fire, or snow but the claim process can be complex. Fortunately, they can help with the proper filing of the claim and allow the homeowner or property owner to get the coverage they are entitled to.

Furthermore, it is important to note that water is one of the most damaging forces of nature and without a suitable gutter system to protect the home or commercial building, the water and moisture from rain and snow can seep through brick mortar, flood basements, and severely damage a foundation. Gutters are vital for any home or business although they are often ignored. But if the gutters fail to drain properly, they need to be replaced by roofing experts to ensure that things will not get worse and result into a more costly repair.
